

Let's Draw Winnie The Pooh

Before you begin to draw Winnie the Pooh, observe this finished picture well. Take a closer look at Pooh's body, how it is structured.

Sketch two uneven circular shapes as you see on this picture. The upper, circle is Pooh's head and the lower one, the egg shaped, is his belly.

Sketch a centre line across his face. This will be the guide line for drawing the face features. Outline the hands, legs and ears.

Make sure you push the pencil very lightly because you are going to erase most of these lines later.

Sketch both Pooh's feet and hands. Draw another centre face line, this time horizontally. This guide line will help you to pitch the position of Pooh's eyes and nose. Outline his smile. It is really very easy to draw Winnie the Pooh as you see. Every step in the sequence is very simple.

Mark out Pooh's eyes and nose. Horizontally sketched face cross line is very helpful now. Outline the contours on the upper half of his head. You can begin gradually erasing some initial guide lines.

Refine his smile. Sketch out the contours of Pooh's red shirt and collar around his neck.

Keep erasing the unnecessary guidelines.

A pen shaped eraser will come very handy if you have one.

Add the eyebrows.

The rough sketch of Winnie the Pooh is now complete. You've now learned how to draw Winnie the Pooh. The next step will be the Piglet, Pooh's best friend.

Outline Piglet's head and belly. Draw two uneven noodles, similar as you see here.

Since you are drawing the Pooh and the Piglet together, make sure that the body size proportions to each other are approximately the same as you see here.

Winnie the Pooh is much bigger than the Piglet, so try to keep their body size in proper balance.

Sketch Piglet's legs, hands and ears. Add the nose part, a small addition to the head circle.

Sketch the centre line on Piglet's face as you see on the picture. Outline the feet.

Outline Piglet's face features and the striped pattern on Piglet's clothes.
This drawing exercise is very good because here you can learn how to draw Pooh and at the same time you learn how to draw Piglet.

Take a light brown colour pencil and draw a distinct clean contour line all around Pooh's body. Do the same on Piglet using pink colour pencil. Now you can begin to erase the residual pencil sketch lines. When ready, you will have a clean contour drawing colouring page template for both, Pooh and Piglet. The rest is the best part: colouring.

Colour out Pooh's body using yellow colour pencil. Just flat plain yellow colour, same colour tone, no shading yet. Similarly, colour out Pooh's shirt using red colour pencil.

Do the same all over Piglet's body with a pink pencil.

Keep on adding more brownish colours on Pooh's body. Also notice that the shades are coloured using red colour.

Colour and shade Piglet's body the same way.

As a final touch, take a well sharpened black pencil and draw a clean contour line over Pooh's and Piglet's body.

You've learned how to draw Winnie the Pooh and his best friend Piglet.
